Veterinary Permission

National Association of Veterinary Physiotherapists

Prior to physiotherapy treatment permission from the veterinary surgeon associated with the horse is required.

A horse may require physiotherapy treatment due to a specific injury that has been seen by the veterinary surgeon in a recently in which case a referral is required detailing the condition and any treatment that has been carried out, this allows me to work alongside veterinary intervention for the best possible outcome.

A horse may require physiotherapy treatment for general comfort and performance, in this case veterinary treatment may not have been sought, however veterinary permission is still required.
